SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (WWLP) - It has been empty for decades, but soon the Mason Square Fire Station will be full of students.

American International College has teamed up with the city of Springfield to redevelop the historic property and make it part of campus.

"Our plan for the fire house is to put a cyber cafe on the 1st floor with a small art gallery open for the community to come in and have access to the internet and hopefully future local artists," said John Short of AIC.

The second floor would house the WAIC radio station and Communications Department.

The college is also considering the redevelopment of the Indian Motorcycle properties.
